Install

Download

You can download Chronoflex from the Triple Audio website. Or you can download the software directly from:

https://share.tripleaudio.nl/software/Chronoflex_Latest/Chronoflex.application

The browser you open the link with asks if you want to open the installer directly, confirm this. It may be that Windows gives a message that the publisher of the software is not recognized. To install Chronoflex anyway click in that window on "More info" and then at the bottom on the button "Run anyway".

If the system was supplied by Triple Audio, you will not get this message and Chronoflex will be installed automatically.

Activate license or demo use

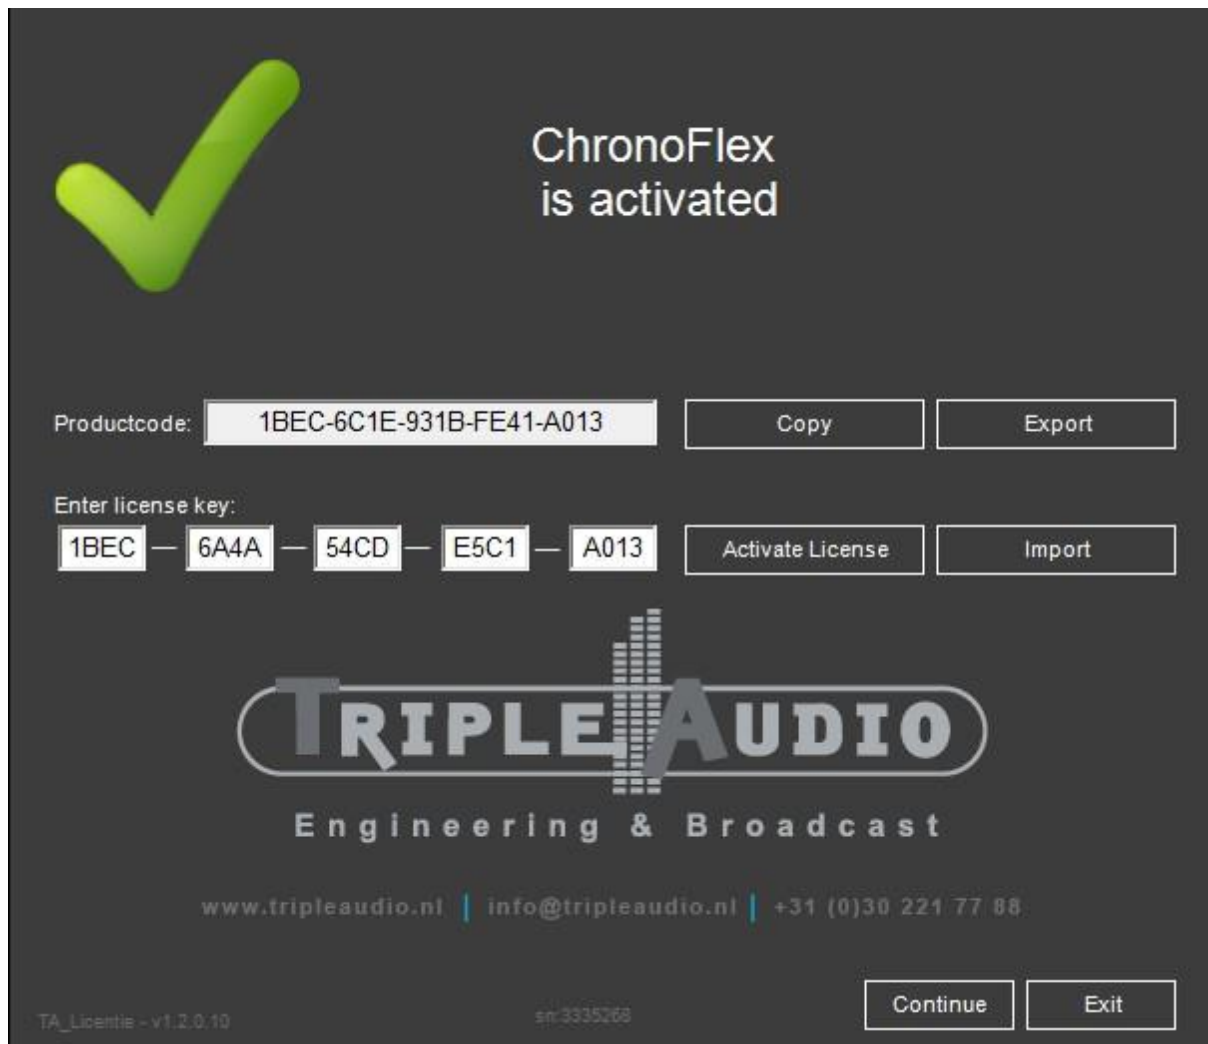

After installation, Chronoflex starts up immediately. You will then see the following window.

Activate

If you have a license for Chronoflex you must first activate it. This activation is bound to the computer. With the product code from the activation window Triple Audio can generate a valid license key.

Send the product code to your contact at Triple Audio. They will send you a license code which you can enter in the activation window. Then click on "Activate License". A window will open asking for a serial number. This serial number will be sent by your contact person. Then click on "Okay" and you will see that Chronoflex is activated.

If you click continue, Chronoflex will be started. This window will only be displayed the first time Chronoflex is started. After an update it is not necessary to activate the license again.

Demo use

You can also use Chronoflex temporarily as a demo. If you click "Exit" in the activation window, Chronoflex will start up in demo mode. You will see a message about this in Chronoflex. In the demo mode Chronoflex will shut down after 120 minutes. However, you can still use all functions.
